Military patriotism is a concept that combines such grandiose concepts as the protection of the interests of the motherland, the people, the mercenary guard of borders, the ability to selflessly show oneself in any field. Military patriotism is the conscious awareness and feeling of the duty and responsibility of every citizen living in this country to the motherland, being ready for any sacrifice for its progress and rise. The education of young, growing up in this country in the spirit of love, loyalty to the motherland is one of the most important activities in ensuring national security.

The Uzbek people are distinguished from many peoples by their rich spiritual heritage, national traditions, moral values. An example of our national tradition and moral values is: respect for ancestors, loyalty, kindness, hard work.

Respect and loyalty to ancestors - in military patriotism, it is important to learn for themselves from the great captains and heroes who have passed in history and make them role models for young people, and, moreover, to feel pride and pride in them. A sense of kindness, on the other hand, helps to maintain collective solidarity, to think not only of oneself, but also of others, even in any difficult conditions. The concept of hard work - the defense of the motherland is considered laborious and honorable, requiring a lot of patience and perseverance in people.

There are a huge number of ways to shape military patriotism in young people, the most effective of which are: education and upbringing, the study of historical heritage, family education, the media. In the method of education and upbringing, we can teach a lot of knowledge and experience in military patriotism to young people in schools, colleges, institutions of Higher Education. The study of historical heritage is done by reading historical works, textbooks, visiting historical sites, viewing documentaries and documentary shows, studying archives, and the military potential and dedication of our great ancestors, such as: Amir Temur, Jaloliddin Manguberdi and Zahiriddin Muhammad Babur, are exemplified to young people. Raising a family-the first concepts and feelings in a child are first formed in the family, therefore, every parent who is engaged in raising a child needs to mature his child in the spirit of love for the motherland. The use of media is the absorption of patriotic ideas into the minds of the younger generation through films, articles and useful programs made on the basis of national values.
