"...Bakhtiar is one of those who perfectly possesses all good intentions, relies on virtuous deeds and refrains from strife.; - enlightenment is the first step in the development of the Bakhta-i kamolata sari; If you are educated and submissive, you will be able to achieve good results.; "Just as Badani's doctor started putting pressure on his patients, Rashbar's doctor should start putting pressure on his patients."[14] According to the results of scientific research work, the emergence and formation of pedagogical ideas has been long in history and has occupied a place as a factor of vital importance in the civilization of peoples. Zoroastrians, for example, believed that the best education is to educate children in the way of natural means and human factors that surround them. Zoroastrian raised children in the spirit of purity, oratory, hard work, honesty, avoiding bad people, avoiding bad manners, and relying on good people [5]. According to the available data, the educational problems of the peoples of Central Asia have been associated with national traditions, spiritual foundations and norms of behavior, which have been universally recognized since ancient times. Therefore, in the educational process of ancestral life as early as that time, the national values expressed in the spiritual, moral and religious foundations of the people played an important role. In this regard, it is assumed that modern pedagogical science pays more attention to the study of the state of introduction of spiritual and moral factors of national values and traditions in education. Especially their information in written sources, which has come down to us, is gaining importance as a scientific and practical need. In the form of a collection of books, highlighting the place of national values in educational issues, for the peoples of Central Asia, the first full source is Avesta. This book is the focus of attention in terms of importance and the power of influence on readers. The book contrasts positive qualities such as dishonesty and chastity, man and Justice, apostasy and rightness with negative superstitions such as tyranny and tribulation, extortion and bribery, muteness and hypocrisy.
